CLARITY MATTERS

The financial sector is critical to the UK economy.

THE SECTOR

The financial sector is fundamental to the UK. It accounts for around 8 per cent of UK output and employs over one million people. It includes global investment banks, lending banks, corporate finance houses and brokers, fund managers, insurance companies and venture capital and hedge funds.

The financial crisis has sent a shockwave through the system and the world economy. The sector faces the challenges of reform and restoring its position, not only for businesses already in the UK but also for overseas financial institutions wishing to commence business here as part of the new world economy.

Financial institutions and other businesses within the sector need clear and commercial advice while keeping focussed on managing risk and protecting reputations.

WHAT WE DO

Nabarro's cross-practice group servicing our financial sector clients advises a wide range of businesses across the sector.

The breadth of our client base allows our financial sector group to draw on experience gained across the sector, to think outside the box and to focus on delivering clear, commercial and pragmatic advice and solutions.

Our advice ranges from strategic and regulatory issues to day-to-day commercial activity.

Recent topical examples where we have been advising include "living wills", Bank Payroll Tax, proposed reforms to the regulatory system and newer developments such as the CRC scheme.

INTERNATIONAL

Cross-border issues directly or indirectly impact on much of our work for financial sector clients both within the European Union and more widely.

We work closely with an established network of overseas law firms and have created a cross-border legal issues group which identifies and discusses regulatory changes in a large number of jurisdictions.

“Outstanding with fast response and very good business awareness. If Nabarro are on the case, we sleep easy.”

“a big-firm approach delivered by friendly people”
